

No one goes into a marriage thinking that adultery is okay. If you thought so, you would probably not get married. But somewhere along the way people stumble into an affair. This is often a long process. They do not go for it right away, but they are enticed to get further and further away from their spouse. When infidelity happens, there is hope that the marriage can be restored, but only when drastic measures are taken.

1. Do you know a couple that has experienced in affair? How did it affect their family?

---

---

---

---

2. How would you help a friend whose marriage was ending because of an affair?

---

---

---

---

3. Is there someone of the opposite sex at work, the gym, your neighborhood or church that you find yourself longing to connect with? Are you keeping this from your spouse?

---

---

---

---

4. What steps have you taken to make sure that you do not fall prey to the temptation to commit adultery?

---

---

---

---